Congratulations High Red

Communications is the glue that holds your world together. iMA is an exciting new way to enter into communications that will help you connect with others at every level of your life and create the world you were meant to live in.

Welcome! The beginning of this guide gives you an insight into your communication and engagement style. You will then see how iMA can help you in developing your communication skills, building trust, giving way to better relationships at home, work and in social situations.

Identifying yourself as iMA High Red is an important step towards your future success and happiness. This is a basic building block for you to learn the things you need to know about you and how you can relate to and communicate better with the majority of people who are on a different wavelength than High Reds. You and all other iMA High Reds are assertive, left brain thinking and tend to measure your personal worth based on results and your track record.

iMA High Reds at a Glance

You are cool, independent and competitive. You shape the environment that you work in by overcoming opposition in order to accomplish results.

You need to be in control of your situation and you need tangible evidence of progress.

You have a no nonsense communication style, can appear that to have a low tolerance for others feelings, like to be in control and you work impressively by yourself.

When stressed you may become dictatorial and restless. Others may see you as blunt, irritable and un-cooperative.

Those speaking the other 3 dialects can learn to use iMA and modify the way they communicate with you by speaking in a way that you find it easiest to listen to.

When this happens communication, trust and co-operation will go up and stress and tension will go down.
Communication is the glue that holds relationships together.

iMA is a simple, colour based, universal language designed to help you communicate, understand, and work with people better.

Identify the colour of the person you want and/or need to communicate with, Modify the message by encoding it in a way that is most likely understood, and Adapt to the differences by treating the other person in a way that they want to be treated (iMA).

When that happens communication, trust, cooperation, understanding, sales and profits go up and stress and tension go down.

Jobs have colours just like people

The most valuable discovery you, being a High Red can make is to identify the line of work that utilizes your natural talents. Something that you do effortlessly without a lot of study or preparation. Things that 75% of the world population find difficult, often marvelling at your ability and not coming close to matching it. When you do a lot with what you do well it gives you energy, keeps you excited and empowers you to produce extraordinary results.

High Reds, like yourself find out how good you can be when working in a businesslike environment using your ability to get things done, your leadership, operational skills and decision making ability. You like to shape your environment to overcome obstacles, en route to your accomplishments.

Be and do better by doing a lot with what you do best and use iMA to help you Connect with others who are strong in areas where you are not.

The better you are at doing this the better the quality of your life.

Finding your High Red Sweet Spot

This Is your pathway to greater meaning and happiness. It is where you are the most positive, energised and aligned to the task at hand and time seems to stand still. Tips To Connect

What colour are the most important people (MIP's) in your life?
To help you gain a greater understanding of their wants, needs and expectations, try telling them: “I'm a High Red” and ask them “What colour are you?”

If they don’t know, suggest that they find out by going to http://IMAhigh.com
"A tribe is a group of people Connected to one another. A group needs only 2 things to be a tribe: shared interest and a way to communicate.”

Seth Godin

Seth Godin Recognise the desire to find your tribe. This is a group where you instinctively feel that you belong. Where you will always be accepted, where you never have to worry about fitting in.

You share the same interests with cool, competitive High Reds across the globe. You share the same comfort zone (High Red) and have similar priorities, wants, needs and expectations.

Why do we do what we do?
Why do we not do the things we know that we should?
Why do we do the things we know we should not?

I first began asking myself these questions when working as a sales representative for the Dale Carnegie organisation in the US.

My idea was if I could discover a way of knowing what my clients were interested in and talk in terms of their interest and even look at things from their point of view then I could make more sales.

I discovered that the basic building block of learning was the ability to identify and observe patterns.

That 90% of what we do is patterned, programmed and predictable and where most people, feel most comfortable, most of the time.

I discovered that people give clues to their comfort zone based on how they look, what they say, how they say it, what they do and how they do it.

When I started to identify the comfort zone of my clients and talking in terms of their interests and matching my selling style with the clients buying style I started selling 4 times the number of enrollments into Dale Carnegie Courses than the average sales representative. This lead me to receiving international recognition as being one of the top 1% highest producing Carnegie representatives worldwide for 5 consecutive years.

A process I call iMA Dreamweaving has helped me to start several successful business’s on both sides of the Atlantic. I’m a Dreamweaver and you can be too.
